Terrorists said out of border territory

By ANAN SAFADI Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

The Arab terrorists were yesterday reported from Beirut to have withdrawn most of their men from the Lebanese and Syrian border areas, because they were now under close surveillance by Israeli patrols. Reports from Beirut said many terrorists have moved in the past few days from southern Lebanon to Syria. The "disappearance" of the ter-rorists from Lebanon's southern order areas was emphasized yester day by news agencies, one of which said in a dispatch from that region that some terrorists "were lying low Heinemann's Olympic Stadium until the clouds disperse.' speech last Wednesday in which he The Executive Commit

Six years for robbing bank with toy gun

HAIFA. - A 38-year-old man from Kiryat Shmaryahu who robbed a bank of IL28,800 with a toy pistol was sentenced by the District Court here yesterday to six years' imprisonment. The prisoner, Fernand Yaish, father of five, pleaded guilty. On April 28, he had walked into the Foreign Trade Bank branch in Kiryat Bialik with a toy pistol in one hand and a knife in the other. Pointing the knife at the neck of a girl clerk, he ordered the manager to empty the con-tents of the safe.

Yaish left with IL28,800, after ordering the manager to remove his shoes and trousers to prevent him from giving chase. Yaish later gave himself up when he learned the clerk had recognized him as a regular fellow passenger on the bus she took to work.

A psychiatric examination ordered by the court revealed that although Yaish had a "confused" and neurotic" personality, he was fit to stand trial. (Itim)

Cecil Knits gets reprieve of one week

TEL AVIV. - A decision on the bid by three banks to have a receiver appointed for the Cecil Knits Co. was put off yesterday for another week with the consent of the banks - Industrial Development, Foreign Trade and Export. But District Court Judge Moshe Beisky, in giving the owners another week to try to round up more working capital, at 'the same time ordered them not to remove the assets or reduce the inventory of the alling firm's Ashkelon plant or to favour any of their creditors over the coming week.

The banks have a total claim of IL17m. on the firm; the Industrial Development Bank claims IL13m., Foreign Trade ILL5m. and the Export Bank IL2.5m. The first two banks, later joined by the third, filed the request for a receiver on

The banks' representatives declared in court yesterday that Cecil Knits' financial condition was worsening from day to day, and that they did not believe the owners would succeed in finding the new capital necessary to save it. They said the firm's investors had held a long session before dawn yesterday without producing any results.

The owners, two of whom Aaron Searl and Yitzhak Leventer - were present in the courtroom claimed through their representatives that there were good chances they would find the needed money, and that there was no need hurriedly to appoint a receiver. In agreeing to put off his decision for another week, Judge Beisky appointed economist Menahem Goren to supervise the firm's operations and to authorize all payments.

AN APPRECIATION

THE PATIENT CAME FIRST

WHEN he died 30 days ago, Moshe Soroka was still being called the "youngest person" in the Histadrut's Kupat Holim. This despite the fact that he had completed 50 years in Kupat Holim mainly as director of the organization which serves the medical needs of two-thirds of all Israelis — and he was only one year short of his 70th birthday. Opinions about his "youth," therefore, had little to do with his actual span of years, and not even to his physical condition, for he had suffered from a heart condition for a considerable time, but to something entirely different. He had an open mind, a critical mind, and not only was he not impatient with different opinions, but he actually sought them out. He was also ready to change his viewpoints to meet changing conditions, to meet the challenge of the times. And it was this fact, his ability to produce a solution which went against the grain of the deeply ideo-logical entrenched old-fashloned socialists which made him a focal point for criticism. But his most of another medical school in Beerardent critics limited their critic- sheba for the same purpose. ism to his ideas and did not at-He was always firm on one point which can best be characterized by a conversation I once heard in his office. The phone rang, and after the usual greetings, Soroka settled down to listen. Finally, he said, "Listen, doctor, all your knowledge of medicine is not worth anything if you can't get sick people well." This was his opinion of the medical profession — it was also his opinion of Kupat Holim, He was willing to change Kupat Holim — even introduce a private doctor system which he did after an almost undistinguished film decade-long fight — as long as ing.

considering doctors as anything else but human beings with all the foibles and frailties of human beings. Once I argued with him, asking, "In hospital departments where there are not enough doctors, why isn't the salary of the missing doc-tors divided up among those who are doing the extra work as well as their own?" Soroka looked at me soon see that the doctors there are thought, was to find more doctors.

He was just as critical of the disorder in the clinic outside the doc-tor's office. "If the patients want to are not coming to a hospital for "The patient comes first," dominact in a disorderly fashion, we maked all of Soroka's thinking. fights, and lost many. One of his more important defeats was when he strongly opposed the implementation of the National Health Law within the framework of the existing sick funds — although this in fact gave his own Kupat Holim a tremendous advantage vis-a-vis the

IMPROVE SERVICES

Firstly, he did not believe that "changing a name" would improve medical services; secondly he thought that the proposed method would still leave the country's health services vulnerable not only to political manoeuvring, but also, and much worse, subject to the changing and fluctuating financial conditions of the country's economy. He wanted to set up a national health authority something like that of the National Insurance Institute, as free as possible from political and financial uncertainties

But the greatest fight he won was about building hospitals. He came to Israel in 1920, and after two years of "building roads" he was seconded to Kupat Holim and helped set up the health organiza-tion's first "sick rooms" in Kibbutz Ein Harod. It was probably at this time that he developed his own philosophy of building. He was against building pavillion-type hospitals, scattered over a large area; he favoured building solid constructions out of first class material. "They might cost more to build, but their upkeep is less: and they last much longer," he once said.

And it was on this subject that he was criticized severely for apsoon see that the doctors there are proving the building plans of the not making much of an extra ef- proving the building plans of the fort nor are they putting in extra Harzfeld Hospital in Gedera for elfort, nor are they putting in extra el-hours. of diamonds, which are considered to be a hedge against the depreciation of money. This has resulted in an increasing demand, especially for larger stones. As the supply of diamonds of perfect quality in the larger sizes has been very limited recently, it has become increasingly difficult to satisfy all customers for the better gems. This tendency has been more distinct in the market for rough diamonds than in that for polished gems, as the availability of fairly large stocks of polished stones has somewhat cushioned the strongly rising price trend.

But, as producers find it more and more difficult to purchase raw materials, prices of polished diamonds cannot fail to rise more steeply in the near future. The London Diamond Syndicate recently significantly increased the prices of "boxes" of rough diamonds it re-gularly supplies to its selected customers. Smaller stones are being upped much less than bigger ones.

Second quarter sales grow at Alliance

Jerusalem Post Reporter Alliance Tire and Rubber Company Ltd. of Hadera last week reported net sales of $11,172,015 for the second quarter of this year. This compares with $8,228,040 for the same period last year.

However, net profit after taxes was $632,636, compared with $870,281 for the three-month period ended June 30, 1971. This meant that earnings per share fell from last year's 52 cents for the quarter, to 34 cents. Another salient figure in the firm's interim and unaudited consolidated earnings statement was the growth in "selling and administrative expenses" $426,592 during last year's second quarter to $862,622 in the same period this year.

Alliance board members, meeting in Tel Aviv last week, heard company officials report on near-term plans of the "Alliance Group," Alliance Tire and Rubber, Samson Tire Company and Alliance Ke-sarya Polymer Industries. Those plans include diversification in the of polyurethane derivatives rapid expansion of the export of high-grade tires for export to the U.S. and Western Europe.

THE SECOND VETO

the American veto cast early this week in the Security Council foreshadows a major change in U.S. operational policy at the U.N. It is also difficult to ascertain whether the move was in the nature of an instinctive reaction to the Munich horror and Sino-Soviet cynicism or a calculated re-appraisal of American moves in the Security Council, especially after the admission of the People's Republic of China.

There is a strong case to be made for the use of the American veto, after years of restraint, as a reaction to China's presence in this important U.N. body. The United States is fully aware of the fact that China's prestige took a leap forward on her admission to the U.N. with a permanent seat in the Security Council. Even at a time of rapprochement between Washington and Peking, Mr. Nixon cannot easily see China as well as the Soviet Union using their veto freely in pursuit of their aims, and let the U.S. take a back seat. Both the United States and the Soviet Union are fully aware of the potential dangers inherent in China's veto. Russia, already committed to the Arab side, cannot let them down. Now. Russia also cannot be less extreme than China. Thus China is in a position to call the shots. This, America cannot permit.

The American veto was also a rebuke to the Security Council for its procedure. Instead of being summoned for an emergency meeting by the Secretary-General, to whom the U.N. Charter has given such power if he

IT is too early to predict whether deems peace is threatened, the Council waited until it was called into an emergency meeting by Syria, following the Israeli air strike at terrorist bases. This incongruity was too much for Ambassador Bush.

> The Arab-sponsored wave of terror does present a clear threat to international peace, but with a difference. This time the victim is not only Israel, but Western Europe, Japan and the American Hemisphere. Arab terrorists and their comrades in the various local anarchist groups have be-come a major headache for many governments. The present situa-tion involves Israel first of all, but it also concerns all governments who can no longer shrug off the problem onto the shoulders of other nations. As long as all threats were directed at Jews and Israelis it was tempting to blame Israel for rigidity and intransigence in seeking a solu-tion to the Arab-Israel conflict Now that the disease has spread, as it was bound to do, a more realistic — and more honest view will have to be taken.

> Instead of waiting until Syria called the Council, it should have been Secretary-General Waldheim's task to demand that the Council take action against terror and not wait for the General Assembly to deal with it. Perhaps in view of this attitude which tended to treat the matter as without urgency or real gravity, the United States was moved to veto a Somali draft resolution which did not mention Israel by name. Mr. Nixon has also indicated his displeasure with the lax anti-terror measures taken by Western European

> But we shall have to wait and see if America's second veto in the twenty-seven-year history of the Security Council will emerge as a pattern, or if it was a one-shot protest.

SINO-SOVIET QUARREL RAGES ON

By NEAL ASCHERSON
THE great Sino-Soviet quarrel has been thrown into relative shadow by the pyrotechnic blaze of President Nixon's visits to Peking and Moscow. America seems to have grasped the initiative, leaping over the barricades of ancient quarrels and rendering them anachronistic.

This is deceptive. While the Nixonian diplomatic rockets arch and flash in the sky, relations between the Soviet Union and China remain—in their relatively dark corner of world attention - frighteningly bad.

The row over the admission of Bangladesh to the United Nations, with China obstructing the new state's entry until conditions set by Pakistan have been satisfied, is only the latest occasion for bad feeling. "Komsomolskaya Pravda" accused China of "demagogy in foreign policy... meant to conceal the Chinese leadership's great-power strategy." An article in "Komunist" repeats that Maoism "represents a petty-bourgeois nationalistic trend whose roots go back into the past history of China." Attempts in the West to defend Mao's form of government as socialism "rank among the most vicious falsifications of bourgeois propaganda."

on Chinese soil during the blockade of Hanoi. But one of the most ominous protests has been the affair of the new "Chinese Atlas of the World."

The atlas has not yet been seen in the West. So far, information about it comes only from the furious criticisms in the Soviet press. But it seems to be composed of almost as many pages of text as of maps. An article in "Izvestia" accuses the Chinese of every kind of error and distortion, from slighting Mongolian independence through ignoring the socialist revolution in Cuba to putting inverted commas round the words "economic integration" when they describe Comecon, the Moscow-dominated economic grouping.

TOUGHER STAND SEEN

A particularly bitter passage in the "Izvestia" article rebukes the Chinese for claiming that the Aigun and Ili Treaties, which defined the Sino-Soviet border in the 19th century, were "unequal treaties." The atlas, the article alleges, claims one and a half million square kiko-metres of "age-old Soviet territory."

The company, retaining a privileged VARDA BARI, position, has no real incentive to the Spokesman produce, sell, develop or promote what are today commonly known as "light" or "less harmful" brands - i.e. cigarettes manufactured with

"safer" (but perhaps less profitable) brands, if the public has no real choice but to buy that company's products? For instance, Dubek has taken over the manufacturing and marketing of "Europa" cigarettes — a brand somewhat temptingly advertised as "low in nicotine con-tent" (but without any figures given for either tar or nicotine content for comparison with other "lighter" brands produced overseas). Signifi-cantly Dubek has refrained from promoting other old brands, for example "Eden" — a very pleasant and lighter cigarette, in my opinion,

Both competition between private tobacco companies and state control of the industry, ensure perhaps paradoxically, greater consideration of the public's welfare and interest Turkey, Sweden, Yugoslavia, Huntime for Israel to correct the present situation, by creating a state monopoly in the law law owned company.

Mr. Lazarov is known to us, as he has in the past been employed by us from time to time in the grading of Oriental tobaccos. Whilat Mr. Lazarov has ceased his active contact with the industry in the last few years, many changes have occurred, mainly in the chemical and blochemical fields, which do not only relate to tobacco, but to a far wider range of research in manufacturing processes, types of cigarette paper, filter rods, etc. The cigarette industry of the 'seventies concerns fiself with analytical re-
